PROCESS

1 Dutch Dried Flowers are sowed in spring and harvested in summer.

2 Harvesting Dried Flowers requires a lot of hand craft. Most of the flower products are still cut piece by piece with knives or harvested with a sickle.

3 After the harvesting we process the flowers in our process rooms.

GREY WASH

We have also a variety of contemporary wash colours. First the stems are painted in a base colour and then a light white wash is added over the top to soften the tone. The feeling is one of a matt almost vintage colour. Ideal for use at any time of year combining with natural fresh foliage's for winter and Christmas to the candy coloured pastels of spring or a rustic vintage wedding. The tone and feeling is soft and subtle.

BLEACHED PINK

We also have a collection of bleached colours. By bleaching the bunches we take out all the natural colour and this has a beauty all of its own, reminiscent of sun bleached grasses. But we also then like to dye the stems and this means the stems take up the colour really well, the colours are bright, sharp and intensely vibrant.
